School of Medicine, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, Greece

Stavros Spiliopoulos is a Professor of Diagnostic and Interventional Radiology at the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, School of Medicine, and Head of the Division of Interventional Radiology, 2nd Department of Radiology, at “Attikon” University General Hospital, Athens, Greece. He is also Director of the Interventional Radiology and Oncology Clinic at Athens Medical Group, Athens, Greece.

Having received his medical degree from the Torino School of Medicine, Italy (2002), Prof. Spiliopoulos undertook his postgraduate training (Radiology registrar and IR fellow) at Patras University Hospital, Rio, Greece, where he also obtained his PhD degree in Interventional Radiology. He successfully completed the EBIR examinations in 2011 and holds both the EBIR-ES and EBIR-IO certifications. He further honed his skills as a Fellow in Interventional Radiology at Guy’s and St’ Thomas’ Hospitals, London, UK. He has served as a Locum Consultant Interventional Radiologist at Aberdeen Royal Infirmary Hospital, Aberdeen, UK, and Nobles Hospital, Isle of Man, UK. Additionally, he held an Honorary Senior Lecturer position at the University of Aberdeen, Scotland, UK.

Professor Spiliopoulos has published over 250 peer-reviewed articles in prestigious international journals, including The Lancet, JACC, Radiology, European Radiology, Stroke, etc. He is a reviewer for over 20 scientific journals and has authored 22 book chapters. He has delivered over 150 invited lectures at national and international conferences. His significant contributions to the field of Diagnostic and Interventional Radiology have been recognized with over 35 international and national awards and distinctions. Prof. Spiliopoulos is an Associate Editor for three PubMed scientific journals, including CVIR Endovascular, and serves on the editorial boards of six international peer-reviewed journals.

Prof. Spiliopoulos is currently a Member of the Board (Treasurer) of the Greek Society of Interventional Radiology, Chairman of the Interventional Radiology Team Development Task Force of the Cardiovascular and Interventional Society of Europe (CIRSE), Member of the CIRSE’s Research and Online Education Committees, Member of the Board (Treasurer) of the Greek Society of Cardiovascular Research, and Member of the Board of the Hellenic College of Radiology. He has served as the President of the Vascular Sub-committee of the European Society of Radiology (ESR), a past elected member of the Standards of Practice and Research Committees of CIRSE.

Professor Spiliopoulos has nearly 20 years of experience in all fields of interventional radiology (vascular, non-vascular, and interventional oncology), regularly performing both routine and emergency procedures. He is also an integral part of a large tertiary university hospital's 24/7 on-call service and runs a busy outpatient clinic.

Professor Spiliopoulos is actively involved in the education of undergraduate and postgraduate students in Radiology and Interventional Radiology. He supervises PhD and MSc students, as well as clinical fellows and specialist registrars from national and international institutions. As a hands-on instructor, he leads training courses in vascular and non-vascular interventions. His research interests primarily focus on endovascular management of peripheral arterial disease, dialysis vascular access procedures, and loco-regional treatments for solid organ malignancies. He actively participates in various clinical and experimental protocols, including multicenter, European, and global studies.
